- I. When the song and dance are smiling around,
And the heart heaves no sigh ;—
Talk not to me then of life's narrow bound ;—
Let me not die !
- II. When the Love-God sits throned in fair beauty's smile,
Or lights up her eye ;
Talk not to me of the grave that while,—
Let me not die !
- III. When the thunder is looming along the Storm cloud,
And the lightning's on high,—
Unfold not for me then the burial shroud,
Let me not die !
- IV. When the sun shines bright on the glad earth,
And the merry birds fly ;
When the heart gushes forth in its joy and mirth,
Let me not die !
- V. But when sunset and stillness are breathing around,
O'er earth and o'er sky ;
Then! oh then, let my death knell sound,—
Then let me die !
- VI. Sweet when I sink to my sunset bed,
Shall the valley clods lie;
And, oh ! when his last setting ray had sped,—
Then let me die !
- VII. At the twilight time bright spirits have power
And fair angels are nigh ;—
Soul! take thy flight in that hallowed hour,
Then let me die !
- And it was then that he did die and so young.

JOSEPH PRINGLE TAYLOR.

No. 106. Joseph Pringle Taylor, General in English Army, son of William¹⁸. Born 1796.

His father, at the time of his death, at Amboy, in 1806. expressed the desire that his children should remain in this country and be reared as American citizens, the trouble being all over ; but his mother deemed it best to take her sons to England, where through the influence of her family, Pringle received an Ensign's commission in the Army. In 1811, at the tender age of 15, he was tossed into a saddle and sent to the East Indies with the 22nd Light Dragoons. He contrived, with the characteristics of his Yankee blood, to keep his saddle through the eventful period of fighting that succeeded.

He returned to England in 1827 with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel and married Adelaide Frances, daughter of Colonel John Shedden, English Army. Issue :

John Courtlandt Skinner,

Isabella Sophia Eliza, and others who died young.

JOSEPH LUFBOROUGH.

No. 107.* Joseph Lufborough, son of ——. Married Phebe, daughter Grover Taylor⁶⁸. Issue :

Charles, Captain in 29th N. J. Volunteers, 1862.

Anna, married Wm. H. Mischeau²⁸⁸.

THE BURYING PLACE.†

The burying place of the Taylors is on the farm of Charles Morford on the north side of the street in the village of Middletown, some five rods back (north) from the road, and about 150 yards northwesterly from the house of G. Crawford Hendrickson (1869). It is one chain, 72 links, north and south, by one chain, 37 links, east and west, according to the reservation in the deed of Joseph Taylor²⁵, to Daniel Hendrickson, the great-grandfather of the said G. Crawford Hendrickson, dated March 3, 1790.

The property had formerly belonged to John Lippitt, and hence this was generally spoken of as the "Lippitt Burying Ground."

John Lippitt conveyed the farm to Edward Taylor²⁰, April 9, 1754, reserving and "excepting a small piece of ground, being enclosed in the Burying Yard, being in length about eighty-four (84) feet and in breadth about thirty (30) feet." Old Squire John's wife, Phebe, lies here.

John Taylor²³ and John Stillwell bought of John Smock, June 22, 1812, (deed recorded Feb. 4, 1813), a Burial Place, on the east of and adjoining the Baptist Meeting House lot, on the north side of the street, in the village of Middletown, N. J., 40 feet wide in front, east and west, and 68 feet $1\frac{3}{4}$ inches deep, north and south; being 1-16 of an acre, "Strict Measure," two-thirds of the same, the front, south part, to be separately owned by John Taylor, and one-third, the rear, north part, by the said John Stillwell. It is understood that of the $\frac{2}{3}$ front part Joseph T., son of John, paid one-half and was to be sole owner.

A private Burial Ground is on the old Homestead land at Garrets Hill, probably established by George Taylor⁴³. A very unusual circumstance, in old cemeteries; the graves are all made north and south, heads to the south. The earlier Taylors are supposed to lie in the "Lippitt" Ground, about 36 chains north, $37\frac{1}{2}$ west from old Taylor homestead.

Most of the families living in 1869 have established plots in Fairview Cemetery.

*108-129 omitted by A. T.

†This follows No. 106 in Asher Taylor's manuscript, although rather out of place.

THE DORSETS.

JAMES DORSET.

No. 130 James Dorset came from Bermuda, and in 1676 took by patent from "The Proprietors," several tracts of land, about 500 acres, lying in the township of Middletown, about four miles westerly from the ancient village of that name; and about two miles southeasterly from the modern village Key Port; the "Bethany" Meeting House* stands on what was his land, a little to the north of the center of his tract.

The ancient Burying Ground of the family is situated on the Easterly side of the road running south from the Bethany Meeting House*, about 100 yards southwesterly from the present dwelling on the old Dorset property. The first dwelling was built south of and near the burying ground.

The place and date of his birth are unknown. He had died in 1721. He was probably unmarried when he came in. His children :

Joseph Dorset.

Endorsed on back "Perhaps Jim Freeman."

The Farm, the old "Dorset Town" estate, on which he died, was a part of the original tract, taken up in 1676 by James, the first¹³⁰; it had descended "from sire to son" in the line of Josephs until the death of this one¹³⁶, when it passed to his son-in-law, Joseph Taylor²⁶; and after his death in 1836, it went out of the family.

The first Joseph¹³¹ appears to have divided up the large tract that his father had left him, apportioning to his son James¹³⁴ a farm on the northwesterly part, since Murphy; to John¹³³ a farm on the northeasterly part, since Gershom Stilwell; to Samuel¹³⁵ farm on the southwesterly part, since Bedle; to his daughter Martha Herbert, the southeasterly part, retaining a farm in the center which was laid at 140 acres when sold in 1839; the central farm and locality was always called "Dorset Town."

Extract from "The New Jersey Gazette" of June 28, 1780, found in 1874 amongst the papers of Thomas Seabrook of Shoal Harbor, deceased, and loaned by his son Henry H. Seabrook, of Key Port.

"Trenton, June 28th.

Extract from a letter from Monmouth County, dated June 22d, 1780 :

"Yesterday morning a party of the enemy, consisting of Ty with 30 blacks of Queen's Rangers, with 30 refugee Tories, landed at Conascung. They by some means got between our scouts undiscovered, and went up to Mr. James Mott's, senior, plundered his and several of the neighboring houses of almost everything in them, and carried off the following persons, viz : James Mott, Sr.,³⁵⁶ Jonathan Pierce,[†] James Johnson, Joseph Dorset¹³⁶, William Blair, James Walling, Jr., John Walling, son of Thomas, Philip Walling, James Wall²⁹⁰, Matthew Griggs and several negroes, and a great deal of stock : but all the negroes, one excepted, and the horses, horned cattle, and the sheep were, I believe, retaken by the people. We had wounded Captain Walling, slightly, and Lieutenant Henderson had his arm broken, and two privates supposed to be mortally, and a third slightly [wounded] in a skirmish we had with them in their retreat. The enemy acknowledge the loss of seven men, but we think it much more considerable."

*This receipt is pasted in the book. The endorsement is in handwriting of A. T.

†It is evident that A. T. annotated the clipping before copying it in his record.

Joseph Dorset¹³⁶ (and perhaps the whole party) was imprisoned in the famous old Sugar House, in Liberty Street, next but one to the Dutch Church (the Post Office, 1870).

CONNASCONK, NEXT EAST OF CHINGARORA.

Examples of Spelling : In 1669, amongst several tracts and parcels of land conveyed by the Indians to Grovert Lockerman and others, "on the West side of Raritan's River, over against Staten Island," was one "Connescenck." See "East Jersey under the proprietors," page 48.

"Conesconcke," in a deed from the Proprietors to Peter Tilton, 31 M—, 1676.

In a deed from Richard Hartshorne to Joseph Dorset, March 10, 1706, "And running along James Dorsetts line to a cart path that goeth to Conescunck."

In a deed 1738—"Connasconk road that runneth down through Joseph Dorsett's land."

NOTE.—There formerly stood in the garret of the old Dorset mansion, an ancient bedstead with "wooden curtains," viz : top, back, head and foot encased with panelled work, and sliding doors of the same in front ; it had come over with "the first man," and on the cords was spread a bare pelt, the hair having all gone long ago, of the skin of a large bear, that the immigrant had killed near his dwelling, and appropriated the hide for a bed bottom ; they were both destroyed at the clearing the house by the old family in 1839. See note to 136.

AMBOY.

Several of the connections having settled with their families at Amboy, may render a brief notice of the place not inappropriate.

Perth Amboy is situated on an elevated plateau at the junction of the Raritan River with "the Kills," Arthur Kill Sound, on an elevated plateau overlooking the bay, and the shores of Middletown, as far as Sandy Hook.

The "Lords Proprietors," in 1696, set apart some twelve or fifteen hundred acres for the site of a great city: "If the Lord permit, with all convenient expedition, to erect and build one principal town which must in all probability, be the most considerable for merchandise, trade, and fishery in these parts," describing it enthusiastically and truly, in their proposals as "a sweet, wholesome, and delightful place."

The building up of their projected city was at once commenced; various obstacles and hindrances, however, intervened from the outset, to prevent its being immediately pushed to a consummation. One of the leading men wrote home August 11th, 1683: "Workmen are scarce;" and added with a naivete really touching, "if help comes not, it will be long ere Amboy is built as London is."

"It is to be presumed," remarks Whitehead, from whom this account is gathered, "that help came not."

All the early settlers were full of confidence and enthusiasm; describing the land, in their letters home, as abounding in all good things that heart could wish. One, after enumerating, in glowing terms, the various advantages of their new situation, adds "what else can contribute to profit or pleasure being here to be had. Neither is there anything here to disturb us; Quakers are not numerous; wolves are far from troubling men; you cannot come nigh to a rattlesnake but he will rattle with his tail," etc., etc.

It is said that the city had attained its greatest prosperity, just prior to the Revolutionary War. From that period it has declined.

"Little did its founders ever imagine that their boasted future capital of the province, and the intended London of America, would, after a lapse of a hundred and seventy or eighty years, present the appearance of the Amboy of 1865."

For, "of all the families residing within the City during the provincial period, of all the original population, not one family name now remains as a memento of the race." (Whitehead.)

The Family of ARTHUR STEVENSON

BY DR. JOHN R. STEVENSON, HADDONFIELD, NEW JERSEY.

In the genealogy of Thomas Stevenson and his descendants on pages 65, 66 and 67 is given a brief sketch of Samuel Stevenson, of Hunterdon County, a grandson of Gov. Samuel Jenings by his daughter Sarah, who was the wife of Thomas Stevenson, third, who migrated from Newtown, Long Island, to Bucks County, Pennsylvania. Samuel Stevenson married in Abingdon, in the latter county and state, on 3d day, 8th mo., 1730, Elizabeth, daughter of Arthur Searle. The births of six of his children, the last taking place in 1742, are recorded in the books of the Middletown Friends' Meeting in Pennsylvania. Before this latter date he had removed into Bethlehem Township, Hunterdon County, New Jersey, where he was a voter in 1738. Here he became attached to the Quakertown Friends' Meeting, by a certificate from Middletown, dated 10th day, 7th mo., 1748, in which records few births are recorded and none credited to Samuel and Elizabeth Stevenson.

It is not likely that the six children whose births are properly recorded as born to a man 32 years of age, with a wife as young as himself were all he had, for he lived many years longer. On August 10, 1758, Samuel Stevenson signed a deed for some property in which he describes himself as the "oldest son and heir-at-law of Thomas Stevenson, deceased, late of Bucks County." As he died intestate his oldest son, Thomas, under the English law, inherited his property and nothing was left to the second son, Samuel, born 29th day, 6 mo., 1742, nor to the supposed son, Arthur Stevenson, born in 1751. These were left to seek their fortune in New Jersey or elsewhere.

In the graveyard at Sennett, Cayuga County, New York, are two tombstones bearing inscriptions, one to the memory of "Arthur Stevenson, died Nov. 1st, 1821, aged 70 years"; the other to "Rachel, his wife, died July 9, 1852, aged 92 years, 5 months and 27 days."

The traditions of Arthur Stevenson's family are that he married Rachel Yard prior to 1785, in Hunterdon County, New Jersey, and lived there until about 1815, when he removed to New York. All of his children were certainly born there. There was a considerable migration from that section after the Revolutionary war into Canada and Western New York. The people had been harassed and impoverished by the marching and counter marching of the British troops across that section of the country, and many sought homes in the newly opened country westward.

Rachel Yard was probably the great-granddaughter of "Wm. Yard,* who in 1688 came to America from near Exeter, Devonshire, England, settling in Philadelphia. About 1700 he removed to Trenton, N. J., then known as the "Falls of the Delaware," and "in 1712 bought of Mahlon Stacy, two acres of land on Second, now State Street. He also bought other large tracts of land, so that when a name was to be given to the place, it was a question whether it should be called Yard-town or Trent-town." In 1715 he was keeping a public house there. From† the old county records we learn that the Hunterdon County Court, in 1719, was held at the house of William Yard, this being the first time that the County Court had ever convened in Trenton. At the May term of this Court, in 1738, William Yard applied for a license to keep a tavern in Trenton. The next year the newly created Board of Freeholders of Hunterdon County, met in this town and adjourned for one hour to the house of William Yard. His will is dated February 14, 1742, and mentions several children.

One of these, Joseph Yard, was appointed Clerk of the Board of Freeholders at its above named session in 1739. In 1754, he was elected a member of the 19th New Jersey Assembly from Hunterdon County, and served until 1761. He died in 1763.

A William Yard (second or third) is mentioned in a deposition of one Patrick O'Hanlon, published in the New York Gazette of October 2, 1752, in which he deposes, among other matters, that on the 26th day of July, previous, he had met William Yard on the road from Bristol to Trenton.

In the Pennsylvania Gazette for April, 1753, is an advertisement of a lottery for the purpose of affording education to the poor. It‡ begins, "We, whose names are hereunto subscribed, sons of some of the principal families in and around Trenton, advertise to start a lottery to build an English and Grammar school on the S. E. corner of the Meeting House yard, in Trenton, under the direction of Messrs. Joseph Reed, Benjamin Yard, Alexander and John Chambers." Benjamin Yard was appointed a Justice of the Peace in 1778, and reappointed in 1784.

THE HOLMES FAMILY.

The Holmes family were the first settlers in "Pleasant Valley," conceded to be the very "Garden Spot" of the rich and fertile township of Middletown, New Jersey. They are decended from the Reverend Obadiah Holmes, of Rhode Island, who came over to this country about the year 1639. He was of a reputable family in the parish of Manchester, Lancashire, England, born in 1606, and married about 1636, Catharine ———.

Backus, in his History of the Baptists of New England, published in Boston, 1777, says "the best account of Obadiah Holmes that I have seen, is in a manuscript which he left to his children, that a gentleman of his posterity has favored me with, an extract of which I will give in his own words; he says 'first I must remember my honored parents who were faithful in their generation, and of good report among men, and brought up their children tenderly and honorably. Three sons they brought up in the university of Oxford; but the most of their care was to instruct them in the fear of the Lord; and to that end' etc., etc., 'but I, the most rebellious of them all, did neither harken to counsel, nor to any instruction,' etc., * * * *."

In fact he represents himself as a pretty hard case for several years. After a while, however, on the death of his mother, he says, he "fell to prayer and duties," and became a pious man.

"When he first came to this land, he joined with the Church in Salem, with whom he walked six or seven years, and then, about the year 1645, was dismissed to the Congregational Church in Seakonk (Rheheboth), under the ministry of the Rev. Samuel Newman. He continued in that relation about four years, when becoming dissatisfied, he, and several others, withdrew, and set up a meeting by themselves, under the Reverend John Clark, a Baptist, and were baptised 'believing the Baptist way was right.'"

Sentence of excommunication was pronounced against them by Mr. Newman; upon which Mr. Holmes and two others were presented (i. e. complained against) to the General Court at Plymouth, June 4, 1650, by four petitioners, urging the Plymouth rulers, to "suppress them speedily." They were charged by the Court to desist, and not to break bread, or preach, or baptise.

The next year Mr. Holmes, with Mr. Clarke and Mr. Crandall made a visit to one William Witter, an aged member of their faith, living at Lynn, and while holding religious services at his house were apprehended and committed to prison in Boston, on the 22nd day of the fifth month, July, (counting March as the first month.)

After various proceedings they were brought to trial, and condemned.

The following is a copy of the judgement and sentences against Mr. Holmes :

"The Sentence of Obadiah Holmes of Seakonk,

"the thirty-first day of the 5th Month, 1651 :

SEMI-ANNUAL MEETING, OCTOBER 17, 1903.

The semi-annual meeting of the Society was held in the Public Library in Flemington, Saturday, October 17, 1903. The meeting was called to order at 10.20 a. m. by the President, Rev. Oscar M. Voorhees. Prayer was offered by Rev. A. C. Bird. Fifteen members and six visitors were present, including Arthur P. Sutphin and Joshua Doughty, Jr., of the Somerset County Historical Society. The Treasurer reported a balance of $73.43 on hand. The other officers reported only routine business. Mr. Fleming suggested that the semi-annual meeting in 1904 be held at Readington, and the matter was referred to the Trustees.

John Capner Thatcher, proposed by James A. Kline, was elected a resident member of the Society.

Inquiry was made as to the whereabouts of the marriage record of the Amwell Episcopal Church for the years 1760-1800. The late Jacob Servis, of Lambertville, had a copy, but the original has not been seen for some years.

Dorman T. Connet read a paper, "New Jersey's Plan for the Federal Constitution," and Rev. O. M. Voorhees read an incomplete paper, "Aunt Polly Kinnan, an Indian Tragedy of the Eighteenth Century." The thanks of the Society were given the authors, and the Library Committee was directed to have them published at the proper time.

The meeting adjourned at noon. The annual meeting will be held Saturday, January 9, 1904, at the same place.

SIR THOMAS LORRAINE.

They had a son Fenwick, no issue; a daughter Catharine, who ran away with David Lyell²⁷⁶; a son Edward, married — Fenwick, who inherited and resided on his father's estate at Morpeth.

The intimacy and connections between the Lorraine family and the Fenwicks, is somewhat remarkable and curious: Sir Thomas named a son "Fenwick"; his granddaughter Jane, married a "John Fenwick"; his daughter Catharine named a son "Fenwick."

John Fenwick, who was associated with Wm. Penn in West Jersey, had been a Major of Cavalry and was present at the execution of Charles the First, January 30, 1648. He was born in 1618, and came over to this country in 1675 and died here 1683. His wife was "Mary," as by her letters of Aug. 27 and 29, 1678, and Feb. 7, 1689, for which see N. J. Historical Society collections, Vol. 1, p. 19.

A Sir John Fenwick was in the Tower in 1689 for adherence to James the Second.

Who, then, was the John Fenwick who married Jane, daughter of William, son of Sir Thomas Lorraine?

SCHENCK.

This family is said to have derived its name from Edgar De Schenchen, chief butler to Charlemagne; who, about A. D. 798, granted to Edgar a title of nobility, and assigned him a Coat of Arms.

Families of this name have been long in Holland, and some individuals of it have been distinguished in that nation's history.

The probability is that those of the name in North America are descendants of Sir Martin Schenck, who was active in the revolution in Holland, and was drowned in 1589. He was a man of great eminence, and his memory is held in the highest veneration.

Two brothers, John and Roeloff, sons of a Martin Schenck, emigrated from Holland in 1650 and settled at Flatlands, on Long Island. Roeloff, in his day, was a leading man on the Island. He died in 1705, leaving three sons, Martin, John and Garret. John and Garret, in 1697, removed to Monmouth County, New Jersey, and settled in Pleasant Valley (township of Middletown, some six miles south-westerly from the ancient village of that name.)

Garret was one of the first Deacons of the Reformed Dutch Church of Freehold, organized in 1709. He accumulated a handsome estate, and died in 1745.

Captain John Schenck⁴⁴⁶ was a grandson of Garret, and an active and gallant officer in the Revolutionary War.

JOACHIM HILL, Clock Maker.

By Alex. B. Allen.

READ AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE HUNTERDON COUNTY
HISTORICAL SOCIETY, JANUARY 9, 1904.

There is one thing over which science, politics or inventive genius can exercise no power, and that is Time, whether it is measured by the shadows on the sun dial or ticked away by the old-fashioned, high. eight-day clock, perchance made by the one of whom I am asked to give a sketch—Joachim Hill.

I find that Time has proved its absolute disregard of memory, and Death has already claimed a large harvest since the "old clock maker" first saw the light in Amwell township. For many and wide are the inquiries I have made regarding him, finding but little authentic until an interview with his only surviving child, a daughter, Miss Martha Hill, of Newark, revealed his true characteristics and eccentricities, some of which I will endeavor to present to you in a brief manner. I find Joachim Hill lived a quiet, uneventful, blameless life, aiming to be truthful and honest under all circumstances. Let me quote from his daughter right in the beginning, a little incident she related, showing his views of honesty, that occurred during the Civil War: "Father, who was at that time getting a little childish, had heard that a law had been passed that only a certain amount of silverware in any house should be exempt from taxation. and recalling the old-fashioned silverware that had been in the house from my earliest recollection, he said to me : 'Marthy, get them scales (a pair of old scales that had been used for weighing sugar) and bring me all the spoons and I will weigh them so as to be sure we tell no lies about them.' So father weighed the spoons by avoirdupois weight and felt satisfied they would afford no one the opportunity to cheat the United States Government, for father was very loyal to his country and expressed a wish to live to see the rebellion put down."

As a maker of old-fashioned brass eight-day clocks Mr. Hill was considered very expert. The early part of his life was devoted to that occupation, and it was then his business flourished, for later he claimed the Yankees spoiled his trade, which he carried on in the old brick house, near Copper Hill, owned and occupied at the present time by Mr. George Britton, whose wife is a distant relative of Joachim Hill. This property, as near as I can ascertain, was purchased about 1814. Mr. Hill's business place consisted of a small casting shop across the road from the house just mentioned, containing an enormous bellows and a very pretty engine, which he made himself and used in making such parts of the brass works as he manufactured. The polishing was done in his main workshop, the dining-room of his house. It is said the brass wheels shone like gold when completed and the polishing irons had been used.

Various opinions have been expressed, and several very decided ones, relative to the parts of the old clocks Mr. Hill made. Some have said every part—others only the case—but his daughter, whose knowledge I must regard, says her father was not a cabinet maker, nor did he make even the dials, but purchased the former, usually handsome solid mahogany cases, frequently inlaid, of a cabinet maker near Flemington, named John Tappen. The dials she had no idea where or of whom he purchased, only that they always had his name in black letters across the front, and this is well demonstrated by several I have seen sold and others owned and prized in our community. Ex-Judge R. S. Kuhl claims to have one of the first clocks Joachim Hill made. William F. Buohl, Henry M. Voorhees, Mrs. Clinton Blackwell and Rev. L. D. Temple are also among the proud possessors of these ancient time-pieces.

The opinions of his daughter as to what part of the clock her father made you have just heard, but it conflicts with those of various clock-makers I have talked with, all of whom claim that the works for the eight-day clocks were imported from England, and that all our clockmakers did was to cast the weights, drill the holes in the brass frames for the pinions, polish the wheels, fit the pinions and put the clocks together. I am not prepared to say which view is authentic, but I will say, and I think every one will bear me out in the statement, that the finished product from his hands shows conscientious work. One of the yearly occurrences in the houses surrounding this part of the country, where an old eight-day clock ticked away time, was the visit of Joachim Hill, trudging along on his little brown mare, a sheepskin for a saddle and a small supply of tools for repairing clocks. His methods were primitive but effective—removing the works and boiling them in ashes and water being the cleaning process; the oil, a hickory-nut pit held between heated tongs and over the desired parts until the proper results were accomplished.

Mr. Hill was not only a clock-maker but a careful, thrifty farmer. He married Martha Barcroft, of Kingwood township, Sept. 4, 1813. He and his wife lived on the farm previously spoken of, rearing a family of seven children—four daughters and three sons. Mary, his eldest daughter, married Dr. Mershon, a skillful physician, a graduate of Princeton and Jefferson colleges. He practiced in Flemington in his early days and in Newark, where he died. Sarah married Gershom Russling, of Trenton. Caroline married William Corbett, a prominent and eloquent Methodist minister, who preached in Newark, New York, Bordentown and Brooklyn. Martha, unmarried, lives in Newark. Augustus married Isabell Van Syckle. John K. married and died in California. Ambrose died unmarried in San Francisco. Thirteen children survive these various families.

Joachim Hill's father, Isaac Hill, and his mother, Mary Hunt, lived in Amwell township, on the farm now owned by Winfield Case, where Joachim was born November 25, 1783. In 1810 he joined the Presbyterian Church in Flemington. Afterward he united with the Methodist Church to please his wife. This was a great grief to his father, a Presbyterian Elder, for Methodists were little known at that time. However, he afterward drifted back to the Presbyterian Church. In appearance he was very short of stature and had very bright, dark eyes and heavy black hair and eyebrows, with scarcely a gray hair, when he died at 76 Orchard street, Newark. April 12, 1869, aged 86 years. He is buried in the Presbyterian churchyard in Flemington by the side of his wife and not far from his father and mother.

I have said Joachim Hill's life was uneventful. Surely we cannot afford to lose sight of the fact that he rests from his labors covered with a mantle of glory as a maker of eight-day clocks.

RICHARD HARTSHORNE.

No. 527. Richard Hartshorne, son of William Hartshorne, of Leicester, England, was born Oct. 24, 1641. He was "a respectable Quaker." came over and settled at the Highlands of Nauvessing in 1669, calling his locality "Portland Place."

In 1677 he obtained the grant of the "exclusive range of Sandy Hook" for his cattle, and subsequently a title for the fee.

He married Nov. 27, 1670, Margaret Carr.

It is not probable, I think, that Mr. Hartshorne came over under any patronage of, or connection with William Penn; but more likely under the influence of Hugo Hartshorne (upholsterer in London) who was much mixed up with, and interested in the concerns of the Province of East Jersey, and was one of the twelve proprietors, who purchased the province from the heirs of Carteret, in 1682.

These twelve were mostly Quakers; Penn was originally one of them, but he appears to have taken but little active part in East Jersey, being entirely engrossed with Pennsylvania.

John Fenwicke (see No. 275), a proprietor of a part of West Jersey had contentions about his lands with William Penn, and others who claimed to be co-proprietors. In 1675 Penn gave instructions to Richard Hartshorne and power to act for him, in the matter in dispute, between him and Fenwick.

"John Fenwick." in a paper dated "the twelfth day of the first month, commonly called March," 1678-9, speaks of William Penn, and others, and "Richard Hartshorne of the Temple, Counsellor-at-Law, (who lately was executed for treason) as having combined together to cheat me of my whole estate." (N. J. Historical So. proceedings IV. 75.) So it appears that Penn's friend and coadjutor was not our Richard Hartshorne; but, he that was hanged and, doubtless, "saved aright."

Physicians in the Colonization of New Jersey.

By DR. JOHN R. STEVENSON, HADDONFIELD, N. J.

The State of New Jersey, for a number of years, has been printing in its "Archives" abstracts of the public records in its capitol. From these and the researches of private investigators great light has been thrown on the early settlement of the Colony, which may be said to have begun in 1675, and continued until 1730; after which the second and third generations began to move South and West. During this period the influence of the profession of medicine was far beyond any heretofore conception of it. The number of doctors who became interested in the founding of the Colony was fifty-eight, of whom six never located in it. Adopting as a basis the census taken in 1709, of Northampton, the largest township in the most populous county, Burlington, which enumerated 283 persons including slaves, there were not over 20,000 inhabitants in New Jersey at that date.

The practitioners were English, Scotch, French, Dutch and Irish, and varied in rank from physician to the Queen of England, to the servant or retainer of a nobleman. Between 1680 and 1690, the members of the medical profession held the title to one fourth the land in the present State of New Jersey, and one of them was the governor of the western half of it for five years. To understand why adherents of so liberal a science as medicine should become patrons of and partakers in a colonization project, it is necessary to give a short resume of the founding of the Colony.

Charles II. of England, in the year 1664, granted the present territorial limits of New Jersey to his brother James, Duke of York. The latter disposed of it to Sir George Carteret, Knight, and John, Lord Berkeley, Baron of Stratton. The last named sold his interest to Edward Byllinge of Westminster, a Quaker, who placed it in trust to members of his faith. In 1676, these trustees and Sir George Carteret made a division of the colony into two parts called East and West Jersey. These grants conveyed the right of government, which was exercised in East Jersey by the Proprietor, Sir George Carteret, and in West Jersey by the largest Proprietor, Edward Byllinge. Each colony had a separate Assembly. Carteret died and his executors, in 1679, sold East Jersey to twelve men who subdivided it with twelve others, making 24 Proprietors, who divided the Province into that number of equal parts, called shares or "Rights."

Edward Byllinge and his trustees divided West Jersey into 100 parts, ten of which were styled a "Tenth," which were also known as shares or "Rights." A Proprietor could sell all or any part of his share. Both sets of Proprietors granted constitutions under the title of "Grants and Concessions," to the colonies, insuring to the settlers civil and religious liberty. A settler buying land took his warrant of purchase to the Surveyor General, who sent a deputy to the proper section and surveyed out for him in any vacant land the lot chosen, and recorded it in his "Book of Surveys." This completed the title.

At the February session of the first Assembly of West Jersey, in 1681, a law was enacted prohibiting a Proprietor from taking up more than 3200 acres or of locating more than 500 acres in one place. The Proprietors of East Jersey on July 3rd, 1686, barred themselves from taking up more than 1000 acres, of which only 500 could be in one place. This latter amount was the limit to any settler in both colonies. After the organization in 1691, in London, of the great land company called the West New Jersey Society, a corporation that governed directly or indirectly all of New Jersey until 1702, when the right of government was surrendered to the Crown, the above laws fell into abeyance and in course of time as many as 100,000 acres were sold to one party.

These facilities made it easy for doctors to invest in land or encouraged them to emigrate.

In old wills the names of children are generally given, but they are not usually accompanied by inventories. Administrators as a rule valued only personal property and rarely mention the names of legatees.

DR. ROWLAND.

In the list of "servants" of Sir George Carteret, the proprietor of half of New Jersey, and of his relative Sir Philip Carteret, to each of whom a grant of 260 acres of land was awarded in 1665, was the name of "Dr. Rowland." There is no other record of him. This illustrates the estimate in which the English nobility held the profession in the 17th century, when their medical attendants were classed with their retainers or servants.

HANS KIERSTEDEN.

Gov. Carteret issued a patent on June 24th, 1669, to "Mrs. Sarah Kiersteden, widow of Hans Kiersteden, Girurgeon," (Surgeon) "late of New York," for a neck of land of 2000 acres, on the Hackensack River, given her by "Oratan, the Sachem of the Hackensacks." Dr. Kiersteden no doubt had sometimes attended the New Jersey Indians, as well as his Dutch compatriots, who were settled in that section.

HENRY GREENLAND.

Dr. Henry Greenland is said in Wicke's History of Medicine in New Jersey, to have come from New England to New Jersey. In March 1675-6, he was assigned ten acres at Woodbridge, which he sold in 1694; that he practiced his profession is proved by the account of the administrators of the estate of Israel Foulsham of Piscataway, N. J., filed in May, 1678, in which is the credit of a payment to "Dr. Greenland." In a deed executed in 1686, his residence is given as "Milston River," and in another conveyance in 1691, for 150 acres in New Piscataway, he is styled "Dr. Henry Greenland, late of Piscataway, now of Milston River." In the latter year he purchased a house with a twelve acre lot in "Amboy Perth," facing the bay.

Among the recorded wills in Middlesex County is that of "Henry Greenland of Piscataway, physician," dated December 11, 1694, and probated the following February. He left his real and personal property to his son Henry; sons-in-law Daniel Brynson (who had a son Barefoot Brynson by his wife Frances) and Cornelius Longfield. His personal property was appraised at £179 7s 10½d. including £99 in cash, £20 bond of David Brynson, and £40 "desperate debts." Dr. Greenland practiced his profession in New Jersey for about twenty years.

EDWARD BOURNE.

A patent was issued on June 1, 1675, by Sir John Fenwick to "Edward Bourne of the city of Worcester (England), physician," for 20,000 acres in his colony, now Salem County, N. J. There is no record of Dr. Bourne's ever having emigrated here. His land was disposed of by agents.

1675.

JOHN CASSIMER FOLLET.

Sir John Fenwick issued a warrant in June of 1675, to "John Cassimer Follet, chymist." and wife Sarah, of the Parish of Shoreditch, Middlesex, England, for 1000 acres in his colony.

1676.

CHARLES HAYNES.

Charles Haynes of "Middleton," Monmouth Co., N. J., on November 26th, 1676, acquired a title to 220 acres of land in that county. By 1693 he had removed to Lewis, Sussex Co., Pennsylvania (now in the State of Delaware) and disposed of part of the above tract, being described as "Charles Haynes, Surgeon." The remainder of it he sold in 1702; the last deed describing him as "Charles Haynes, formerly of Middleton, N. J."

1676.

BERNARD DEVONISH.

Thomas Hooten on March 1, 1676, conveyed to Bernard Devonish one eighth of a share (or Propriety) of West Jersey. This was before any of the Proprietors, except Sir John Fenwick, had removed to this province. Three years afterward (1679), Edward Champneys, son-in-law of the latter, transfers to "Bernard Devonish, late of the Parish of Great Bartholomew, London, now of Blandford Grove, Township of New Salem, Fenwick's Colony, barber surgeon," 500 acres in what is now Salem County, N. J. This land he disposed of in 1681, and moved up to Burlington Co. Here he describes himself as a resident on Northampton River (Rancocus Creek) in the last named county. He became a farmer while disposing of his "Rights" to land, by numerous conveyances in which he is called husbandman and sometimes yeoman. He died in the town of Burlington (where he owned property), his will being dated December 30, 1694, and proved the next February. In it he mentions his wife Martha, son Joseph and daughter, Martha Hilliard. His personal property was appraised at £31 5s "including one silver cup and some old books."

1677.

DANIEL WILLS.

Dr. Daniel Wills was one of the Proprietors of West Jersey. On January 22, 1676-7, the trustees of Edward Byllinge, the sole Proprietor, sold to "Daniel Wills of the town of Northampton (England), practitioner in chymistry," and two others, one share (1-100 part) of West Jersey Province. He emigrated to America the same year, arriving in the ship Kent, Marlowe, Master, in October 1677, and settled in Burlington County. In a deed executed in 1680, he is described as "Daniel Wills of Rancokus (Burlington Co.,) Dr. of Physick." In another deed he is styled "chyrurgeon." His will is dated March 25th, 1698.

in Northampton Township of the above county, in which he says he is 65 years old. It was probated March 30, 1700. His children were James, David, John, Ann and Mary Ewer. The inventory of the personal property amounted to £417, 12s, 8½d; among the books was a "chyrurgery called Ambrose Parry." Dr. Wills was a member of the General Assembly from its organization in 1681 until his death.

JAMES WASSE.

James Wasse never came to this country although he was a large Proprietor. In a deed dated December 22nd, 1681, the then three largest Proprietors of West Jersey, convey to "James Wasse of London, citizen and barber surgeon," in pursuance of an award between the grantors and grantee, 5000 acres, "being the same proportion he bought of John Fenwick of Benfield, Birks Co." (England), in 1675. Part of this was surveyed on Kohanzee Creek, now in Cumberland Co., N. J. In subsequent documents, James Wasse is styled "chyrurgeon." In 1698 he makes Hugh Hall of Pennsylvania, his agent to sell his land, viz: "10,000 acres in Fenwick's colony, also one whole share of West Jersey." As one of the Proprietors he signed the surrender of the government of the Province to the Crown in 1702.

Physicians in the Colonization of New Jersey.

By DR. JOHN R. STEVENSON, HADDONFIELD, N. J.

SIMON COOPER.

The only public reference to Dr. Cooper is in a deed bearing date November 10, 1681, in which "Simon Cooper, of Ramsants' Point, Monmouth Co.." East Jersey, "Surgeon," conveys to Col. Lewis Morris, Ramsant's Point, "as originally owned by Christopher Almy, now of Portsmouth, Rhode Island." As this part of the State was largely settled from New England, Dr. Cooper may have come from that section.

1682.

ROBERT DIMSDALE.

Dr. Robert Dimsdale became a Proprietor by a conveyance dated January 20, 1682, which says that Hugh Lambe, now or late of the Parish of St. Martin's in the Field, county of Middlesex, "hosyer," sells to Robert Dimsdale, of Edmonton, (both of England) $\frac{1}{2}$ of 1-7 of 1-90 share in West Jersey. The following October he had 500 acres surveyed to him out of his "Rights" in Burlington County, N. J., building thereon a large brick house on a stream of water called Dimsdale Run. He was a member of the General Assembly and of the Governor's Council in 1684. In 1685, Dr. John Gosling, whose widow was to become Dr. Dimsdale's mother-in-law, makes him the executor of his will. In 1688 a power of attorney was given to "John Tatham, of Tatham House, Pennsylvania," by "Robert Dimsdale, of Burlington County, physician, intending to sail for England." He never returned to America; but in 1692 he is described as a "chyrurgeon" resident of Bishop Stratford, Hertford Co., England, where he published a book of specifics for various diseases. Dr. Dimsdale married as his second wife, Sarah, daughter of Francis Collins, another Proprietor, who after her husband's death in 1718, returned to New Jersey. Dr. Dimsdale owned considerable land in Pennsylvania.

JOHN GOSLING.

Dr. John Gosling was one of the signers to the "Grants and Concessions of the Proprietors, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Province of West Jersey in America," dated March 3, 1676. This document was really the Constitution of the Province as granted to settlers. His residence then is not given, but in a deed dated Oct. 16, 1682, executed by Thomas Budd, of Burlington, N. J., conveying to him $\frac{1}{8}$ share of West Jersey, he is described as "John Gosling, merchant of New York." He then settled in the above named county and was in 1683 elected a member of the West Jersey Assembly, and also appointed a member of the Governor's Council. He was a merchant in the town of Burlington, where he also practiced his profession. He made his will May 15, 1685, stating that he was intending to go to the Barbadoes, which was probated February 12, 1685. Only one child is mentioned in it, his son John. The inventory of his estate amounted to £766, 6s, 6d, in which is included his plantation, appraised at £100. Dr. Gosling's widow, Mary, a daughter of Thomas Budd, a large Proprietor, remarried Francis Collins, December 21, 1686, the father-in-law of Dr. Dimsdale. On February 23, 1702-3, John Gosling, son of John, of Burlington, being 19 years old, chose Thomas Briant as his guardian. Henry Grubb also signed the bond.

1682.

GEORGE LOCKHART.

In 1682, "George Lockhart, of New York, practitioner of physic and surgery," sells to Thomas Codrington of the same place a house, lot and garden in Woodbridge, East Jersey, which the doctor had purchased in 1679.

1683.

JAMES WILLOCKS.

Robert Burnett, of Lethentie, Scotland, in July, 1683, conveys $\frac{1}{8}$ of 1-24 of a share of East Jersey to "James Willecke, Doctor of Medicine, Kemnay, Scotland." The next year the former acknowledges that he owes "James Willocks, senior, M. D., in Kemnay," two shares of East Jersey. Dr. Willocks never emigrated to America, but transacted his real estate business through his brother, George Willocks, who was also a Proprietor and at one time Deputy Surveyor General. The latter died at Perth Amboy, N. J., 1728, leaving a large estate.

1684.

JOHN ALEXANDER.

Gov. Barclay, of East Jersey, on July 25, 1674, ordered 312 acres of his share of land to be surveyed to "John Alexander, M.

D., of Scotland." This was confirmed in 1687. There is no trace of him in this country.

JOHN GORDON.

"John Gordone, of Collestown, Scotland, M. D.," on April 24, 1684, has confirmed to him 1-10 of 1-48 share of East Jersey. In Liber A of the deed books of this Province is recorded the servants imported by "dr. John Gordone," viz: William Daviesone and William Peddie. By 1690 Dr. Gordon appears to have returned to Scotland, as on October 17 he executes in that country a power of attorney "to his brother, Thomas Gordon, of New Perth, New Jersey," as his land agent. The latter makes his will in 1721, mentioning his wife, Jannett, who is his executrix, and children, Andrew, Thomas, John, Margaret, Mary and Euphaine.

1685.

PETER DASSIGNY.

"Dr. Peter Dessigny" married the widow of Aaron Rogers, of Woodbridge, E. Jersey, in 1685; the next year "Petter de S'guey, of Woodbridge, Surgeon," buys 60 acres near Elizabethtown. Letters of administration were granted on the estate of "Dr. Peter Dassigny" on November 14, 1694, and the inventory was filed the next month, amounting to £54, 11s, 11d, including books £20, 6s.

1685.

JOHN JOHNSTONE.

On board the ship Henry and Francis of New Castle, England, bound for East Jersey, George Scott, of Pitlochrie, Scotland, died, having made his will, October 31, 1685. It appointed "James Dundas, brother of the Laird of Arnoustan, Robert McClelland, of Bellmackachan, James Ranier, mariner, and John Johnstone, apothecary," to be the advisers of his only daughter Euphaim. One witness signs the will as "John Johnstone, druggist," which was probated in East Jersey, February 26, 1685-6. Dr. Johnstone, as he is ever afterwards styled, became the real adviser of Euphaim Scott by promptly marrying her, thus acquiring the "Right" to 1,000 acres of land bequeathed her by her father. He lived for a time in New York, but in a deed executed in 1692, his residence is given as Hopfield, Monmouth Co., E. Jersey. This was afterwards called Scotschester. Dr. Johnstone not only practiced medicine but took part in public life. He served for thirteen years in the East Jersey Assembly, and was Speaker for ten of them. He was Mayor of New York, to which place he had removed, from 1714 to 1718, and was a member of the Council of that State in 1720. Shortly afterwards he returned to Perth Amboy, N. J., where he died Sept. 19th, 1723, aged 71 years. On board the same ship was another death, that of William Rig, whose will is dated November 27, 1685. One of the witnesses was "James Hutchinson, apothecary."

1685.

WILLIAM ROBERTSON.

The will of George Gordon of "Amboy Perth," N. J., subscribed to January 20, 1685-6, says, "Dr. Robieson may dissect me." George Gordon made "his brother Sir John Gordon," of Gordonstone, Scotland, his residuary legatee. According to a real estate transfer made in 1690, "William Robinson, late of Scotland, Doctor of Physicks," originally owned $\frac{1}{8}$ of 1-48 share of East Jersey, bought of Robert Lethentic. Several inventories record payments to him for professional services. The inventory of the intestate estate of "William Roberston of Essex County, Doctor of Physick," bears date June 2, 1693. The personal property amounted to £250, 15s, 3d, including "Debts sperate and desperate," six silver spoons, one silver tumbler and a negro woman slave. His 120 acres of land was not appraised. Margaret Robinson and William Griffith were the Administrators.

1686.

JOHN AND THOMAS RODMAN.

Drs. John and Thomas Rodman, brothers, came from Barbadoes to Rhode Island about 1682, where both resided when they purchased interests in New Jersey. On April 6, 1686, "John Rodman of Rhode Island, chyrurgeon," bought 500 acres with a house and lot on Northampton River (Rancocus Creek), Burlington County, N. J. This property he and his wife, Mary, both at this time of Block Island, R. I., exchanged in 1691 with John Adams, of Flushing, L. I., for a house and land there, to which place the doctor removed and practiced his profession, dying in 1731.

On September 25, 1686, "Thomas Rodman of Rhoad Island, chyrurgeon," bought 1-90 part of 1-6 share of West Jersey, surveying out of it 500 acres along side of his brother John, and some lots in the town of Burlington.

Dr. John Rodman, Junior, son of Dr. John, Senior, who was born May 14, 1679, located first in Philadelphia, afterwards in Boston, and finally in Burlington, N. J., where he practiced medicine from about the year 1727. He became a member of the Governor's Council, an office he held until his death, July 3, 1756.

DANIEL COXE.

Dr. Daniel Coxe resided in London, where he was a member of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and physician to the Queen. He loaned Edward Byllinge, Proprietor of West Jersey, some money on a mortgage on one Propriety in 1683, which was foreclosed by the former and bought in by him in 1685. Dr. Coxe now began rapidly to buy land rights until, by the year 1687, he had become the largest Proprietor and under the law became the Governor of West Jersey, ruling it not in person, for he never came here, but by a deputy. In a letter to the Council of Proprietors, dated September 6, 1687, he tells why he did this. "We thereupon consulted with several proprietors and others, well wishers to your colony, amongst whom it was agreed and resolved to be for the good of your country, and our own security, that one amongst us should purchase from the heirs of Mr. Byllinge, all his or their interest in property and government; and because my proportion of land was greater, or that they apprehended me capable of serving them, or to have more money at command or because they had ever perceived me to be zealous and active to promote the good of the province."

The Council of Proprietors had been organized on the 14th day of February previous with eleven members, viz: Samuel Jenings, Thomas Olive, William Biddle, Elias Farr, Mahlon Stacy, Francis Davenport, Andrew Robeson, William Royden, John Reading, William Cooper and John Wills. This Council became then the controllers of, and continues to-day, the owners, of all vacant land in West New Jersey. The election of its members passed to Dr. Coxe: from him, in 1692, to the West New Jersey Society, and was finally transferred by it, to Benjamin B. Cooper, June 8, 1814, whose heirs control it now.

Dr. Coxe in 1692 sold all his holdings in West Jersey, besides two shares of East Jersey, 10,000 acres in Pennsylvania and 150,000 acres in the "County of Merrimacks," New England, to the West New Jersey Society, a land company organized in London in 1691, composed of forty-eight stockholders, who governed both East and West Jersey until 1702, when its right of government was surrendered to the British Crown.

Dr. Coxe held no stock in the company, but in May, 1699, he bought of the "Right Hon'ble the West New Jersey Society," 30,000 acres in two tracts in Burlington County, N. J. This land he bequeathed to his son, Col. Daniel Coxe, who came to the town of Burlington and made it his home, dying in 1739.

On June 16, 1688, Richard Russell, of Philadelphia, ship carpenter, conveyed to "John Haughton, chyrurgeon," 250 acres adjoining Richard Laurence, at Lower Hook, West Jersey. This was at the lower part of Red Bank, in Gloucester Co., which lies opposite the present U. S. Naval Station, League Island, Philadelphia, and where Fort Mercer stood, which was so successfully defended against the attack of Count Donop and his Hessian troops in the Revolutionary War. Before the arrival of the English here in 1682-3, the Swedes had made settlements, and there were so many inhabitants in 1686, the year in which Gloucester County was organized, that at a meeting held the 28th day of May it was ordered that "the Court shall be held at one tyme at Arwamus, alias Gloucester, and another tyme at Red Bank."

In 1694 he owned and lived on 500 acres on Cohansee River. The non-cupative will of "Ralfe Horsley of Cohansey, Salem County," was probated December 4, 1699, he having died the previous day. From this time until his death in 1723, his name variously spelled, is noted as a practitioner of medicine. He was the son-in-law of Nathaniel Westland, a prominent merchant of Burlington, who was appointed agent for the sale of land by the West New Jersey Society, a great land company organized in London in 1691.
